

C2A reaches Dennilton and Mitchell's Plain

Unisa's Chance 2 Advance programme concluded 2014 with learning initiatives in Dennilton in Ntwane Village, Limpopo, and Mitchell's Plain in the Western Cape. The combined attendance of both programmes was just over 3 000. Participants benefited from 18 relevant workshops designed to cater for their unique learning contexts.

Participants had the following to say:

“Thank you for coming to the Dennilton community. I have learned a lot and now know that even without a Matric there is still hope. I have the knowledge required to improve my community. I request for a return of the Chance 2 Advance programme in the community to reach more and offer more,” said Kedibone Precious Madisa.

Lechen Hill said: “I would like to extend my appreciation for the investment in our community. After having attended the workshop on Preparing for the Working World, I now understand why I have not received any call backs for work. My goal is now to apply for jobs more confidently as I am better equipped. I intend to share the knowledge I have with others in my community”.

Dr Genevieve James, project director of Chance 2 Advance, explained that 2014 was a highly productive year for the project with expanded reach into new communities. Unisa academics and members of Unisa support divisions have assisted the project in its implementation around the country. “We are grateful to Unisa academics who have faithfully supported the programme since its inception by sharing their knowledge with participating communities.”

Facilitator Lenaka Nkgisang with participants of the Electricity Literacy & Career Opportunities workshop during the Dennilton programme.

Entrepreneurship class photo during the Mitchell's Plain programme.